About ALA

Career planning begins long before you graduate. In fact, it is your first job. The American Library Association (ALA) is here to help you build marketable skills beyond the classroom — skills that are attractive to employers. Connecting with experienced professionals is invaluable to your career.

ALA members tend to create their own ALA experience by connecting with others with similar interests and goals, by exploring something new, and by getting involved. ALA offers a wide variety of ways to connect with colleagues across the country and around the world. This includes ALA divisions, round tables, offices, and all the individual connections you will make over time.

Join online at www.ala.org/aboutala/joint-membership-program.
