Youth Media Awards Announced at Midwinter Meeting

ALA announced the top books, audiobooks and video for children and young adults, including the Caldecott, King, Newbery and Printz awards, at its Midwinter Meeting in Boston.

John Newbery Medal for most outstanding contribution to children’s literature: When You Reach Me, written by Rebecca Stead, is the 2010 Newbery Medal winner. The book is published by Wendy Lamb Books, an imprint of Random House Children’s Books.

Four Newbery Honor Books also were named: Claudette Colvin: Twice Toward Justice by Phillip Hoose and published by Melanie Kroupa Books/ Farrar Straus Giroux, an imprint of Macmillan Children’s Publishing Group; The Evolution of Calpurnia Tate by Jacqueline Kelly and published by Henry Holt and Company; Where the Mountain Meets the Moon by Grace Lin and published by Little, Brown and Company Books for Young Readers; and The Mostly True Adventures of Homer P. Figg by Rodman Philbrick and published by The Blue Sky Press, An Imprint of Scholastic Inc.

Randolph Caldecott Medal for most distinguished American picture book for children: The Lion & the Mouse, illustrated and written by Jerry Pinkney, is the 2010 Caldecott Medal winner. The book was published by Little, Brown and Company Books for Young Readers.

Two Caldecott Honor Books also were named: All the World, illustrated by Marla Frazee, written by Liz Garton Scanlon and published by Beach Lane Books; and Red Sings from Treetops: A Year in Colors, illustrated by Pamela Zagarenski, written by Joyce Sidman and published by Houghton Mifflin Books for Children, Houghton Mifflin Harcourt.

REFORMA President Loida Garcia-Febo, left to right, YALSA President Linda Braun, ALSC President Thom Bartholness, Coretta Scott King Book Awards Committee Chair Deborah Taylor, and ALA President Camila A. Alire display some of the ALA Youth Media Awards winners at the conclusion of the Youth Media Awards presentation.

Gebregeorgis Provides Insight, Inspiration at ALA President’s Program

By Frederick J. Augustyn, Jr.
The Library of Congress

ALA President Camila Alire, whose signature initiative for Family Literacy Projects dovetailed with the topic of the speaker at the President’s Program on Sunday, January 17, introduced the CNN Video detailing Yohannes Gebregeorgis as one of the ten individuals honored as that station’s heroes and the librarian himself who was responsible for a program promoting literacy and libraries among Ethiopia’s children.

Alire indicated that while the literacy rate in the world is large at 82 percent, in Ethiopia literacy is only 42.7 percent. Librarian Gebregeorgis, who earned his MLS degree at the University of Texas in Austin under the mentorship of past ALA President Loriente Roy, is combating illiteracy among the young in his native country with innovations such as donkey mobile libraries to get reading material out in particular to the rural poor.

Gebregeorgis reflected that “with literate children there is no limit to how much we can do.” He reminisced about how books guided his life. Ethiopian schools tend to contain only textbooks to the exclusion of fiction and historical fiction and, consequently, do not ordinarily inspire young readers. But he recounted how the story “Guy Fawkes and the Gunpowder Plot” in the compilation The March of Times set his hopes soaring, especially when student movements against Emperor Haile Selassie ensued. His involvement in anti-government ac-

and Company Books for Young Readers; and The Mostly True Adventures of Homer P. Figg by Rodman Philbrick and published by The Blue Sky Press, An Imprint of Scholastic Inc.

Randolph Caldecott Medal for most distinguished American picture book for children: The Lion & the Mouse, illustrated and written by Jerry Pinkney, is the 2010 Caldecott Medal winner. The book was published by Little, Brown and Company Books for Young Readers.

Two Caldecott Honor Books also were named: All the World, illustrated by Marla Frazee, written by Liz Garton Scanlon and published by Beach Lane Books; and Red Sings from Treetops: A Year in Colors, illustrated by Pamela Zagarenski, written by Joyce Sidman and published by Houghton Mifflin Books for Children, Houghton Mifflin Harcourt.

REFORMA President Loida Garcia-Febo, left to right, YALSA President Linda Braun, ALSC President Thom Bartholness, Coretta Scott King Book Awards Committee Chair Deborah Taylor, and ALA President Camila A. Alire display some of the ALA Youth Media Awards winners at the conclusion of the Youth Media Awards presentation.

Gebregeorgis Provides Insight, Inspiration at ALA President’s Program

By Frederick J. Augustyn, Jr.
The Library of Congress

ALA President Camila Alire, whose signature initiative for Family Literacy Projects dovetailed with the topic of the speaker at the President’s Program on Sunday, January 17, introduced the CNN Video detailing Yohannes Gebregeorgis as one of the ten individuals honored as that station’s heroes and the librarian himself who was responsible for a program promoting literacy and libraries among Ethiopia’s children. Alire indicated that while the literacy rate in the world is large at 82 percent, in Ethiopia literacy is only 42.7 percent. Librarian Gebregeorgis, who earned his MLS degree at the University of Texas in Austin under the mentorship of past ALA President Lorienie Roy, is combating illiteracy among the young in his native country with innovations such as donkey mobile libraries to get reading material out in particular to the rural poor.

Gebregeorgis reflected that “with literate children there is no limit to how much we can do.” He reminisced about how books guided his life. Ethiopian schools tend to contain only textbooks to the exclusion of fiction and historical fiction and, consequently, do not ordinarily inspire young readers. But he recounted how the story “Guy Fawkes and the Gunpowder Plot” in the compilation The March of Times set his hopes soaring, especially when student movements against Emperor Haile Selassie ensued. His involvement in anti-government ac-

and Company Books for Young Readers; and The Mostly True Adventures of Homer P. Figg by Rodman Philbrick and published by The Blue Sky Press, An Imprint of Scholastic Inc.

Randolph Caldecott Medal for most distinguished American picture book for children: The Lion & the Mouse, illustrated and written by Jerry Pinkney, is the 2010 Caldecott Medal winner. The book was published by Little, Brown and Company Books for Young Readers.

Two Caldecott Honor Books also were named: All the World, illustrated by Marla Frazee, written by Liz Garton Scanlon and published by Beach Lane Books; and Red Sings from Treetops: A Year in Colors, illustrated by Pamela Zagarenski, written by Joyce Sidman and published by Houghton Mifflin Books for Children, Houghton Mifflin Harcourt.

REFORMA President Loida Garcia-Febo, left to right, YALSA President Linda Braun, ALSC President Thom Bartholness, Coretta Scott King Book Awards Committee Chair Deborah Taylor, and ALA President Camila A. Alire display some of the ALA Youth Media Awards winners at the conclusion of the Youth Media Awards presentation.

Gebregeorgis Provides Insight, Inspiration at ALA President’s Program

By Frederick J. Augustyn, Jr.
The Library of Congress

ALA President Camila Alire, whose signature initiative for Family Literacy Projects dovetailed with the topic of the speaker at the President’s Program on Sunday, January 17, introduced the CNN Video detailing Yohannes Gebregeorgis as one of the ten individuals honored as that station’s heroes and the librarian himself who was responsible for a program promoting literacy and libraries among Ethiopia’s children. Alire indicated that while the literacy rate in the world is large at 82 percent, in Ethiopia literacy is only 42.7 percent. Librarian Gebregeorgis, who earned his MLS degree at the University of Texas in Austin under the mentorship of past ALA President Lorienie Roy, is combating illiteracy among the young in his native country with innovations such as donkey mobile libraries to get reading material out in particular to the rural poor.

Gebregeorgis reflected that “with literate children there is no limit to how much we can do.” He reminisced about how books guided his life. Ethiopian schools tend to contain only textbooks to the exclusion of fiction and historical fiction and, consequently, do not ordinarily inspire young readers. But he recounted how the story “Guy Fawkes and the Gunpowder Plot” in the compilation The March of Times set his hopes soaring, especially when student movements against Emperor Haile Selassie ensued. His involvement in anti-government ac-
Authors Discuss Print-to-Film Transition

By Frederick J. Augustyn, Jr.
The Library of Congress

The Exhibits Roundtable showcased authors Eric Van Lustbader, Chuck Hogan, Tracy Chevalier, and Julie Powell comfortably arranged on sofas and interviewed by Brad Hooper on January 15.

Robert Ludlum's estate selected Lustbader, author of many bestselling thrillers of his own including The Testament and The Ninja, to continue the Bourne series whose transition to film was the major topic of his discussion. Asked what it was like taking over a character from a popular author, Ludlum explained that he felt that he knew Bourne and, unlike many others, he also got along with Ludlum.

Lustbader noted that "you take what you see in everyday life and extrapolate" when writing fiction. He does what is natural for him growing up that she often said that "she loved books so much when these were what people ate and common household tools. She admitted that "she loved books so much when growing up that she often said that she wanted to be either a writer or Chuck Hogan, author of several novels including The Standoff and Prince of Thieves and co-author of The Strain, jocularity admitted that there have been no drawbacks, so far, to having his books optioned as films. Like Lustbader, news stories also influence Hogan's works. Hogan, for example, wrote a crime novel after learning that Charles-town in Boston was a virtual epicenter for armed car robberies although he also underlined the traumatizing effect such an event had on a bank teller. Among the writers whom he admires and reads are Dashiel Hammett and Richard Price.

Tracy Chevalier, the author of Girl with a Pearl Earring, which became a film starring Scarlett Johansson, stated that she has to research the particulars of everyday life in her historical novels. Among these were what people ate and common household tools. She admitted that "she loved books so much when growing up that she often said that she wanted to be either a writer or

Al Gore Delivers Solutions to Climate Change

By Brad Martin

ABC News

Al Gore began the Arthur Curley Memorial Lecture Saturday, January 16, by joking that he was “formerly the next President of the United States,” but then set a serious tone as he gave the audience a tour of his latest book Our Choice.

Gore, whose audience included children and grandchildren of Arthur Curley, acknowledged the humanitarian crisis unfolding in Haiti as a result of the recent earthquake, and said, “one of the secrets of the human condition is that suffering binds us together.”

Moving to the topic of climate change and its global effects, Gore said, “one of the things the current crisis does is to cause us to consider those who will come after us,” adding that “the scientific community has reached a consensus that is as strong as any you will find.”

Gore then discussed the ideas he presents in Our Choice, which he described as an effort to focus on the solutions to the climate crisis, unlike An

Visit H.W. Wilson Booth #1714

At the Wilson Theater:

- Fiction Core Collection—new 16th Edition
- Careers—coming this winter
- Art Suite—63 new Journals, New Images
- Biography products—new graphical interface coming

Drawing for a Gift Basket!

Visit H.W. Wilson Booth #1714

Al Gore delivers the Arthur Curley Memorial Lecture January 16.

Inconvenient Truth, which was mostly an exploration about the problem. He said that three years of research for the book gave him some hopeful signs, but one big obstacle. “The good and hopeful news is that we have enough solutions to solve three or four crises like this. But we have everything except the will to act.”

Gore praised librarians by calling them “the stewards of that great institution that was created during the Enlightenment,” a time when the printing press helped spawn what he called a democratization of information, a “new information ecosystem.”

Unfortunately, according to Gore, the rise of broadcasting has ushered in a “refeudalization” of the information ecosystem. He cited the example of big tobacco’s public relations offensives having delayed action against the harmful effects of smoking, and said that similar forces are at work in the climate change debate “to oppose anything that might call for government response and to sow confusion.”

While describing many of the solutions (solar, wind, geothermal, biofuels), Gore also pointed out that the climate crisis, the economic crisis and the national security crisis are all intertwined. He said this was because we have “an absurd, dangerous, ridiculous overdependence on fossil fuels.”

Gore praised individual efforts at reducing carbon emissions, but said government action is needed more. “It is important to change light bulbs and windows, but it is far more important to change laws and policies.”

Citing an African proverb that says “if you want to go quickly, go alone; if you want to go far, go together,” Gore stressed that “we have to go far and quickly.”

Gore closed by recalling President Kennedy’s goal of putting a man on the moon and how he had inspired a young generation to do just that.
Sunrise Speakers Series Brighten Midwinter

By Stacy L. Voeller
Minnesota State University
Moorhead

The Sunrise Speakers Series closed on Monday, January 18, with award-winning playwright, television writer and documentary filmmaker Adriana Trigiani. Her bestselling books include the Big Stone Gap series, Lucia, Lucia, The Queen of the Big Time, Big Cherry Holler, and Very Valentine. Her latest book, Brava Valentine, is the sequel to Very Valentine, and debuted in February.

Trigiani entered the room, larger than life. When she took the podium, she said, “I am deeply, deeply honored to be here. I would have come by dog sled if I had to because I love my librarians. In our country, librarians are really and truly the protectors of our cultural life. You are the soul of our country, and the protectors of the words.”

She told the audience that her mother is a librarian. “We grew up reading our books right in front of us and barely opening them up. Don’t break the spine my mother said, don’t break the spine.”

When Trigiani wrote the first book in the Big Stone Gap series, she never thought it would get published. Her mother, and her high school librarian, Billie Jean, were not completely pleased. When she next saw Billie Jean, she said to Trigiani that “she didn’t mind being portrayed as racy in the book Big Cherry Holler, she did deeply mind, however, being portrayed as speaking improper English.”

Trigiani spoke fondly of her high school librarian and said she was the one that introduced her to Walden. Her favorite quote from Thoreau’s book is, “I learned this, at least, by my experiment; that if one advances confidently in the direction of his dreams, and endeavors to live the life which he has imagined, he will meet with a success unexpected in common hours. He will put some things behind, will pass an invisible boundary; new, universal, and more liberal laws will begin to establish themselves around and within him; or the old laws will be expanded, and interpreted in his favor in a more liberal sense, and he will live with the license of a higher order of beings.” She said librarians have the ability to hook people in with books, and if “you hook ‘em, you’ve got ‘em for life.”

In closing, Trigiani told the audience, “You really are in charge of this going forward, we need you. You connect the reader to the subject, for the kids and the adults. Thank you, the authors get it, and we love it!”

Other authors speaking during the “Sunrise Series” included Atul Gawande, M.D. A surgeon and a writer, and a staff member of Brigham and Women’s Hospital, the Dana Farber Cancer Institute, and the New Yorker magazine. In 2002, his book Complications: A Surgeon’s Notes on an Imperfect Science was a finalist for the National Book Award. His book, Better: A Surgeon’s Notes on Performance is a New York Times bestseller and one of Amazon’s ten best books of 2007. His newest book, The Checklist Manifesto, is one of Amazon’s best books of the month for December 2009.

Also presenting was Elizabeth Gilbert, author of Eat, Pray, Love, which was number one on the New York Times best seller list for over a year and was also named to the American Booksellers Association Acclaimed Best Seller List. In 2006, Gilbert was named one of Time magazine’s 100 most influential people.

ALA Holds Forum for Candidates for President and Treasurer

By Adrienne Chamberlin
Simmons College

ALA members got to see and hear from four candidates running for office: Molly Raphael and Sara Kelly Johns running for ALA President and Jim Neal and Alan Kornblau running for Treasurer at a forum January 16.

Molly Raphael has been active in ALA for 35 years as President of LLA-MA, President of District of Columbia Library Association and has chaired many committees within the organization. Raphael believes libraries are “essential for learning; essential for life.” Her vision includes strong advocacy for libraries and the communities they serve, recruiting and retaining an ever increasing diverse library workforce, and an unwavering commitment to protecting libraries’ core values of intellectual freedom, privacy, and open access to information. Raphael believes she and libraries should be innovative thinkers and collaborators within their communities to increase funding and Register Now for Annual Conference in D.C.!

Sarah, The Duchess of York
Sunday, June 27, 8:00 – 9:00 a.m.

This August, The Duchess will launch a new children’s book series called Helping Hand books. The series addresses a variety of experiences that children may encounter as they grow up and offers helpful tips for parents and kids. The Duchess is the author of many children’s books, including the New York Times bestselling Tea for Ruby, a five-book children’s series about the adventures of Little Red and the Budgie, The Little Helicopter series.

Nancy Pearl With Mary McDonagh Murphy
Saturday, June 26, 8:00 – 9:00 a.m.

In celebration of the 50th anniversary of To Kill a Mockingbird (July 11, 2010), an American classic, Nancy Pearl will interview Mary McDonagh Murphy, Emmy-award-winning filmmaker and author of the upcoming book, Scout, Atticus and Boo: A Celebration of Fifty Years of To Kill a Mockingbird. Nancy Pearl speaks about the pleasures of reading to library and community groups throughout the world and comments on books regularly on NPR’s Morning Edition.

Sue Monk Kidd and Ann Kidd Taylor
Saturday, June 26, 10:30 – 11:30 a.m.

Sue Monk Kidd grew up in the tiny town of Sylvester, Georgia, a place that deeply influenced the writing of her first novel The Secret Life of Bees. Kidd’s first book, God’s Joyful Surprise describes the beginnings of her spiritual search. Her second book, When the Heart Waits recounts her vivid spiritual transformation at mid life.

Dave Isay
Sunday, June 27, 10:30 – 11:30 a.m.

Dave Isay is the founder of StoryCorps, a nonprofit oral history project that honors and celebrates the lives of everyday people through listening. In spirit and in scope, StoryCorps models itself after the Works Progress Administration (WPA) of the 1930s, which recorded oral history interviews across the country.

David Small
Monday, June 28, 10:30 – 11:30 a.m.

David Small was born and raised in Detroit. His drawings appeared regularly in The New Yorker and The New York Times. To date he has illustrated over 40 picture books.

Junot Diaz
Monday June 28, 3:00 – 4:00 p.m.

Junot Diaz exploded into the literary scene in 1996 with Drown, a collection of short stories that was one of the first books to illuminate the lives of Dominican-American immigrants. Diaz’s first novel, The Brief Wondrous Life of Oscar Wao, is the winner of the 2008 Pulitzer Prize for Fiction.

Closing Session
Tuesday, June 29, 9:00 – 10:00 a.m.

The speaker for the Closing Session is still being finalized, but previous speakers have included Bill Bradley, Madeline Albright, Barack Obama and Richard A. Clarke. Please check the Annual Conference website at www.ala.org/annual for details.

ALA/ ProQuest Scholarship Bash
Saturday June 26, 7:00 – 11:00 p.m.

The ALA/ProQuest Scholarship Bash will make headlines in Washington, D.C. at the new Newseum on Saturday, June 26. The Newseum will offer attendees an experience that blends five centuries of news history with up-to-the-second technology and hands-on exhibits. Don’t delay and get your tickets early! Remember, tickets are tax-deductible, advance $40 and on site $45, as applicable by law, and proceeds go towards ALA MLS’s scholarships...including Spectrum! Register online, by mail or fax at http://www.ala.org/registration/annual.
CONGRATULATIONS!

JERRY PINKNEY
2010 Caldecott Medalist for
THE LION & THE MOUSE

“I have always loved this fable for its rich possibilities and largeness of heart.” — Jerry Pinkney

CONGRATULATIONS!

GRACE LIN
2010 Newbery Honor Recipient

★ “Children will embrace this accessible, timeless story.” — Booklist (starred review)
Kansas City Here We Come

Over 200 ALA attendees gathered together for a festive fundraiser Saturday, January 16 during the 2010 ALA Midwinter Meeting to benefit the 2nd National Joint Conference of Librarians of Color (JCLC). The conference is planned for September 19-23, 2012 in Kansas City, MO.

ALA President Camila Alire hosted the event in her presidential suite. Various raffle baskets were donated from the Massachusetts Black Librarians Network (MBLN), Cornucopia of Rhode Island (a diversity library group), and Missouri Library Association, as well as from the five ALA affiliated ethnic library associations planning the JCLC 2012: the American Indian Library Association (AILA), Asian/Pacific American Librarians Association (APALA), Black Caucus of the American Library Association (BCALA), Chinese American Librarians Association (CALA), and REFORMA, the National Association to Promote Library and Information Services to Latinos and the Spanish Speaking.

The JCLC 2012 Steering Committee Co-chairs, Haipeng Li (CALA) and Janice Rice (AILA) encouraged the attendees to go to the website at http://www.ala.org/jclc, and use the Volunteer Link to actively participate in the planning and preparation by serving on one of the many working committees: Awards and Scholarships Committee, Evaluation Committee, Exhibits Committee, Finance Committee, Fundraising Committee, Local Arrangements Committee, Proceedings Committee, Program Committee, Publicity Committee, and Registration Committee.

The conference theme is “Gathering at the Waters: Celebrating Stories, Embracing Communities” and the JCLC Steering Committee invites all who are interested in promoting diversity to save the September 19-23, 2012 date in Kansas City, MO and make plans to attend. For more information please contact Marcellus Turner, JCLC Steering Committee Secretary at mtturner@jefferson.lob.co.us.

Candidates

influence those communities.

Sara Kelly Johns is a longtime school librarian. Past President of the American Association of School Librarians (AASL), the Associate Editor for AASL Community for Knowledge Quest, former and present ALA Councillor and is currently a member of ALA President Camila Alire’s REACT committee for her advocacy initiative for frontline library workers. Johns believes in strongly promoting libraries and their services as a “cornerstone of a global economy.” She envisions a stronger, more effective organization through increased member participation in ALA. Johns advocates diversity, open access to information for everyone, intellectual freedom, and privacy as part of her mission. She believes in working with librarians and legislators to increase public awareness of the vital role libraries play in society.

Alan Kornblau believes in increasing memberships in ALA. Kornblau wants ALA to be a leader in technology and will encourage younger leaders in the library community to take an active role in ALA. Increasing ALA publications not only domestically, but internationally, is also part of his plan. He sees the Treasurer position as a challenging one, citing his success in his library work, and jokingly promised to negotiate for Midwinter in his home area of South Florida.

Jim Neal, has served on budget and finance committees for ALA, and believes ALA needs “sound budgeting policies and practices.” Neal realizes that revenues come from memberships, conferences, and publications, and are complemented by grants and fundraising. He plans to grow these traditional forms of revenue and add new ones. His focus is not just on what’s happening right now in the economy and ALA, but where ALA is going in the future.

The forum will be available on blip.tv and YouTube after Midwinter.

Neil Gaiman Named Honorary Chair of National Library Week

Author Neil Gaiman, and 2009 Newbery Medal winner for The Graveyard Book, has been named the 2010 Honorary Chair of National Library Week, which will be celebrated April 11–17. As Honorary Chair, Gaiman will appear in both print and radio public service announcements (PSA) and a podcast and will participate in a National Library Week event developed by the American Library Association’s Campaign for America’s Libraries.

For libraries looking to promote National Library Week, the PSA is available for customization at www.ala.org/nlw. Other materials include a proclamation, sample press release and letter-to-the-editor, as well as scripts for use in radio public service announcements (PSA). Materials focus on the 2010 National Library Week theme “Communities thrive @ your library” and can be downloaded at www.ala.org/nlw. Materials are available in both English and Spanish.

Libraries planning to participate in “Communities thrive @ your library”-themed programming are encouraged to share their stories by joining the National Library Week Community on ALA Connect at http://connect.ala.org/node/85425. The mission of the National Library Week community is to create an open discussion space for ALA members to communicate their ideas and develop new ways to celebrate and promote National Library Week in all types of libraries. ALA Connect is the home of ALA’s online communities and is open to all.

National Library Week is a national observance sponsored by the American Library Association (ALA) and libraries across the country each April. It is a time to celebrate the contributions of our nation’s librarians and to promote library use.

The Campaign for America’s Libraries (www.ala.org/@yourlibrary), ALA’s public awareness campaign that promotes the value of libraries and librarians. Thousands of librarians of all types — across the country and around the globe — use the Campaign’s @ your library® brand. The Campaign is made possible by ALA’s Library Champions, corporations and foundations that advocate the importance of the library in American society.

Enjoying the JCLC fundraiser Reception in Boston are (L-R) JCLC Steering Committee Co-chair Haipeng Li, ALA President Camila Alire, past ALA Executive Board member, Patty Wang and MultiCultural Review Editor, Roberto Delgadillo.
ALAN President Camila Alire and Executive Director Keith Michael Fiels join James Rooney, Executive Director of the Massachusetts Convention Center Authority (MCCA), in presenting a check for $27,084.50 to State Representative Linda Dorcena Forry for humanitarian relief for victims of the recent earthquake in Haiti. ALA members donated one-half of the amount on-site during the 2010 ALA Midwinter Meeting in Boston with the other half being matched by the MCCA in honor of the members of their staff who lost family in the earthquake. Donations will be used to directly support immediate humanitarian and relief needs in Haiti. Rep. Forry is one of two native born Haitians in the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

Cheryl Willis Hudson, left, Publisher & Editorial Director of Just Us Books, Inc., East Orange, N.J., and exhibitor Jennifer Hunt, right, look over a copy of The Lion & The Mouse at the Little, Brown and Company booth.

Viola Dyas Berkeley, Ca., takes part in the Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Holiday Celebration.

Elizabeth Gilbert, author of Eat, Pray, Love, opened the Sunrise Speaker Series on January 16.

Noted surgeon and writer Atul Gawande, M.D., enlightened the Sunrise Speaker Series audience January 17.

Members of Arthur Curley’s family including grandsons Matt Clancy, from left to right, Tim Clancy, and daughters Ellen Curley, and Susan Curley Clancy applaud Vice President Al Gore as he presents the Arthur Curley Memorial Lecture.

The Exhibits floor draws a crowd during the All Conference Reception January 15.
he revealed that he is proudest of his involvement with the library because they are practical, inexpensive, and appealing to children. Other achievements were helping to establish Ethiopian Children’s Book Week in April and a children’s book prize. There are no free school libraries in his country, admittedly better than none at all, but many more are needed.

Observing that “literacy and literature make us humans,” Gebregeorgis mused that perhaps both teachers and librarians should be presidents of countries. Or perhaps they comprise the same category because “librarians are also teachers.” Unfortunately there are few trained librarians in Ethiopia, the result of the discontinuation of the only library education program. Ethiopia needs both library training and volunteers.

Gebregeorgis repeated the axiom that “Ethiopia is a museum of people...a multiethnic society.” Although that “Ethiopia is a museum of people...a multiethnic society.” Although

The American Indian Library Association (AILA) is pleased to announce the winners of the third American Indian Youth Literature Awards (AIYLA). The AILA awards recognize excellence in books by and about American Indians. By identifying and honoring outstanding writing and illustrations in the field of children’s literature, AILA encourages authors, illustrators, editors, publishers, and total entities to create materials that present Native Americans in the fullness of their humanity in present and past contexts.

Awards are given for three categories: Best Picture Book, Best Middle School Book, and Best Young Adult Book. The winners of the 2010 awards are:

• A Coyote Solstice Tale by Thomas King. Pictures by Gary Clement.
  Gardenworks Books, 2009, for Best Picture Book

• Meet Christopher: An Osage
  Indian Boy from Oklahoma by Genevieve Simermeyer. With photographs by Katherine Fogden.
  National Museum of the American Indian, Smithsonian Institution in association with Council Oak Books, 2008, for Best Middle School
  Book

The AILA awards recognize excellence in books by and about American Indians.

The changes enable YALSA to better support the needs of its members and the library community by providing both constituencies with lists geared to the specific needs of their teen users. The re-envisioning of these YALSA lists and awards aids the association in creating superior content for members and helps guarantee that titles on each and every one of YALSA’s lists is fully recognized. Librarians, teachers, parents, and teens will be able to more easily locate the materials that are of most interest whether it be fiction, non-fiction, in graphic or audio formats, or published originally for adults.

These changes are the culmination of a three-year process that involved a member taskforce that evaluated YALSA’s portfolio of selected lists as well as an ad-hoc committee of YALSA’s board, who gathered and evaluated feedback from current and past Best Books for Young Adults committee members. YALSA developed an FAQ about the recent changes to provide more information, which is accessible at www.ala.org/ala/mgrps/divs/yalsa/booklistawards/faq.cfm.

Questions can be directed to YALSA at yalsa@ala.org.

Chuck Hogan (second from left) makes a point during the ALA/ERT Author Forum, as Eric Von Lustbader, Brad Hooper, Tracy Chevalier, and Julie Powell listen.

Authors

from page 2

a librarian.” Chevalier appreciated the movie version of her book. But she had decided not to be involved in its screenplay. She likened the filmed version of her book to “a liquid Vermeer painting ...a Vermeer that moves.” She found it ironic that “it appears to consolidate a writer’s reputation when a film is made from a book.”

Julie Powell is the author of two memoirs—Julie & Julia, recently transformed into a movie by Nora Ephron starring Meryl Streep and Amy Adams and Cleaving. She liked the film although she disclosed that she had a little to do with YALSA’s lists and awards aids the association in creating superior content for members and helps guarantee that titles on each and every one of YALSA’s lists is fully recognized. Librarians, teachers, parents, and teens will be able to more easily locate the materials that are of most interest whether it be fiction, non-fiction, in graphic or audio formats, or published originally for adults.

These changes are the culmination of a three-year process that involved a member taskforce that evaluated YALSA’s portfolio of selected lists as well as an ad-hoc committee of YALSA’s board, who gathered and evaluated feedback from current and past Best Books for Young Adults committee members. YALSA developed an FAQ about the recent changes to provide more information, which is accessible at www.ala.org/ala/mgrps/divs/yalsa/

booklistawards/faq.cfm.

Questions can be directed to YALSA at yalsa@ala.org.

The passion of volunteers collecting used books to send to Ethiopia or coming there to help is essential.

YALSA Changes Alex Awards, Best Books

At the 2010 Midwinter Meeting, the YALSA Board of Directors unanimously voted to re-envision YALSA’s Best Books for Young Adults list as the Best Fiction for Young Adults list.

The board also voted to expand the work of the Alex Award committee, which honors adult books with special appeal to teens, so that along with the ten winners announced at each Midwinter Meeting, a vetted list of official nominations will be announced. These changes go into effect for the 2011 lists, whose committees begin work on February 1, 2010. Other than the change to expand the work of the Alex Award committee, no changes to any of YALSA’s literary awards were made.

The changes enable YALSA to better support the needs of its members and the library community by providing both constituencies with lists geared to the specific needs of their teen users. The re-envisioning of these YALSA lists and awards aids the association in creating superior content for members and helps guarantee that titles on each and every one of YALSA’s lists is fully recognized. Librarians, teachers, parents, and teens will be able to more easily locate the materials that are of most interest whether it be fiction, non-fiction, in graphic or audio formats, or published originally for adults.

These changes are the culmination of a three-year process that involved a member taskforce that evaluated YALSA’s portfolio of selected lists as well as an ad-hoc committee of YALSA’s board, who gathered and evaluated feedback from current and past Best Books for Young Adults committee members. YALSA developed an FAQ about the recent changes to provide more information, which is accessible at www.ala.org/ala/mgrps/divs/yalsa/
  booklistawards/faq.cfm.

Questions can be directed to YALSA at yalsa@ala.org.

The AILA awards recognize excellence in books by and about American Indians.

Authors

from page 2

A

Emily Wichland looks over the new book Disaster Spiritual Care as she sets up a booth in the Exhibits for Skylight Paths Publishing, Jewish Lights, and Gemstone Press.
Integrated Systems Topic of LITA’s Top Tech Trends Discussion Group
By Stacy L. Voeller
Minnesota State University Moorhead

The Top Technology Trends Discussion Group was held on Sunday, January 17.

David Walker, Web Services Librarian, California State University System, discussed the idea of using integrated systems for indexing of content in libraries. According to Walker, these would be “systems that take content form a variety of places and bring them together and index them prior to even making them available to users. This is a tech trend that can address a fundamental problem in libraries because right now we have systems that are disconnected. Bringing the data together into aggregated indexes will give users one place to look for RSS, for example, and one place for mobile feeds.”

Amanda Etches-Johnson, User Experience Librarian, McMaster University, talked about how user experience was a buzz word for 2009. “Like most buzz words,” said Etches-Johnson, “no one quite agrees what user experience really means. User experience design encompasses everything from building design to interface and web design. In the library world, we’re not ready to think about how users feel, we are worried about them finding what we need.” Etches-Johnson also indicated that what is happening with mobile design will impact web design in the future.

Lauren Pressley, Instructional Design Librarian, Wake Forest University, said augmented reality is the “idea of blending virtual data with the real world.” It’s a combination of the real and virtual that happens in real time and in a 3-d nature. A basic example is seeing the first-down line on the football field on television, but they don’t see it at the actual physical game.” Pressley also discussed the Horizon Report for 2010, and how the report is “predicting augmented reality will have an impact, and that you can get educational data through this augmented reality. In libraries, you could be in the stacks of the physical library and have this augmented app open and have specific titles jump out at you virtually.” Jason Griffey, Head of Library Information Technology, University of Tennessee, Chattanooga, discussed how 2009 was “definitely the year for the iPhone and its app store. The apps store opened in mid-2008, and by January of 2009 they had downloaded 500 million applications. Today, there are 134,000 applications available, but only a few for libraries. These include the Washington, D.C. Public Library, OCLC, and Library Thing’s Local Books.” Griffey said even with this popularity, he believes 2010 is the year the app dies because of HTML 5 and CSS 3 who use description languages for writing for the web. In HTML 5, when you write it once, it will work on the phone, the desktop, everywhere. Anyone writing an app now needs to look at HTML 5.”

New Research Topics Announced at DiversiTEA
By Adrienne Chamberlin Simmons College

On January 17, the ALA’s Committee on Diversity held its annual DiversiTEA, a proper tea party complete with sandwiches and assorted snacks. Veronica L. C. Stevenson-Moudamane, Chair of the Diversity Research Grant Advisory Committee, led the meeting. In 2002, the Diversity Research Grant Program was started to address “critical gaps in the knowledge of diversity issues within library and information science.” The grant awards each recipient $2000 for original research, plus $500 for travel expenses to present their findings at the ALA Annual Conference.

Two of the 2009 recipients spoke about the topics they are currently researching. Clayton Copeland from USC is exploring how to increase accessibility in libraries to everyone who is “differently-abled,” helping those with challenges become those with special abilities. Copeland is conducting studies where she asks people who are “differently-abled” about their library experiences, learning about problems of access from their personal perspectives, or lived experiences. “She wants to get those who are “typically-abled” together with those who are “differently-abled” to discuss where libraries are now in terms of accessibility, and how to move forward with better solutions.

Stephanie Maata Smith is working with two colleagues from Alabama in her research. She is learning from students with disability issues about what they need, and is forming strategies to adapt teaching styles to address those needs, particularly with technology that can sometimes pose challenges for the students. Smith sees two main problems, which are “the need to have trained library staff to serve users with disabilities, and how to make the technology already at hand more accessible and user-friendly.” She and her colleagues have set up two case studies to watch and learn from, with a view to effectively learning how best to serve users with disabilities.

The results of these research projects will be presented at ALA’s Annual Conference in Washington, D.C.
Awards

Michael L. Printz Award for excellence in literature written for young adults: Going Bovine, written by Libba Bray, is the 2010 Printz Award winner. The book is published by Delacorte Press, an imprint of Random House Children's Books, a division of Random House.

Coretta Scott King (Author) Book Award recognizing an African American author and illustrator of outstanding books for youth: Bad News for Outlaws: The Remarkable Life of Jesse James, Deputy U.S. Marshall, written by Vaunda M. Mihee Nelson, is the King Author Book Award winner. The book is illustrated by R. Gregory Christie, published by Carolrhoda Books, a division of Lerner Publishing Group, Inc.

One King Illustrator Honor Book was selected: War of the Worlds by Tanita S. Davis, written and illustrated by Geoffrey Hayes, is the Geisel Award winner. The book is published by TOON BOOKS, a division of RAW Junior, LLC.

Four Geisel Honor Books were named: I Spy Fly Guy! written and illustrated by Ted Arnold and published by Scholastic; Little Mouse Gets Ready! written and illustrated by Jeff Smith and published by TOON BOOKS, a division of RAW Junior, LLC; Mouse and Mole: Fine Feathered Friends, written and illustrated by Wong Herbert Yee and published by Houghton Mifflin Books for Children, Houghton Mifflin Harcourt; and Pearl and Wagner: One Funny Day, written by Kate McMullan, illustrated by R. W. Isley, and published by Atheneum Books for Young Readers, a division of Simon & Schuster Children's Publishing Group.

Robert F. Sibert Medal for most distinguished informational book for children: Almost Astronauts: 13 Heroes Bound for Mars is the Sibert Medal winner. Written by Tanya Lee Stone, it was narrated by Dion Graham. The book is published by Atheneum Books for Young Readers, a division of Simon & Schuster Children's Publishing Group; American Plague: The True and Terrifying Story of the Yellow Fever Epidemic of 1793, published by Clarion Books; and Mirror Drive the Bus!, written and illustrated by Christopher Paul Curtis, is the Sibert Medal winner. The book is published by Candlewick Press.

Three Sibert Honor Books were named: A Faraway Island is the Sibert Honor Award winner. Written by Jane Bingham; Star of the Sea is the Sibert Honor Award winner. Written by Christopher Paul Curtis; and The Invisible Player: My Story of Negro League Baseball is the Sibert Honor Award winner. Written by Walter Dean Myers; it was narrated by Dion Graham. The book is published by Clarion Books.

Arthur A. Levine Books, an imprint of Scholastic Inc.

William C. Morris Award honors a first-time writer or illustrator for young adults: Flash Burnout, written by L.K. Madigan, is the Morris Award winner. The book is published by Houghton Mifflin, an imprint of Houghton Mifflin Harcourt.

Another Hispanic Voice: The Tellout by Adrian C. Johnson. Written and illustrated by Gail Carriger, it was published by Orbit, an imprint of Hachette Book Group; and Stitches: A Memoir by David Small, published by Harry Holt Books for Young Readers, an imprint of Macmillan Children's Publishing Group.

Andrew Carnegie Medal for excellence in children's video: Paul R. Gagne and Mo Willems of Weston Woods, producers of Don't Let the Pigeon Drive the Bus!, are the Carnegie Medal winners. The video is based on the book of the same name written and illustrated by Willems; it was narrated by Willems and Jon Scieszka with animators at Weston Woods Studios.

Mildred L. Batchelder Award for an outstanding children’s book translated from a foreign language and subsequently published in the United States: Koala Mom, translated by Arlette Colvin, is the 2010 Batchelder Award winner. Originally published in Swedish in 1996 as En o i hatet, the book was written by Annika Hofman; translated by Lisette Schetzen; and published by Delacorte Press, a division of Random House Children’s Books.

Three Batchelder Honor Books also were selected: Big Wolf and Little Wolf with a Red Face, translated illustrated by Olivier Tallec, translated by Claudia Bedrick and published by Enchanted Lion Books; Eidi, written by Bodil Bredsdorff, translated by Kathryn Mahaffy and published by Farrar Straus Giroux; and Moribito II: Guardian of the Darkness, written by Nahoko Uehashi, illustrated by Yuko Shimizu, translated by Cathryn Hirano and published by Tor Books.

Theodor Seuss Geisel Award for outstanding new author: Peter H. Reynolds, is the 2010 Printz Award winner. The book is published by Candlewick Press.

Three Printz Honor Books were selected: Diego: Bigger Than Life, illustrated by David Diaz, written by Carmen T. Bernier-Grand, is the Printz Honor Award winner. The book was published by Posta Porta Book, Roaring Brook Press, wins the award for best young children ages 0 to 10.

Anything but Typical written by Nora Raleigh Baskin and published by Simon & Schuster Books for Young Readers, is the winner for middle grades (ages 11-13).

The teen (ages 13-18) award winner is Marcelo in the Real World, written and illustrated by Francisco X. Stork and published by Arthur A. Levine Books.
Awards » from page 10

published by W.W. Norton & Company; and Tunneling to the Center of the Earth by Kevin Wilson, published by Harper Perennial, an imprint of HarperCollins.

May Hill Arbuthnot Honor Lecture Award recognizing an author, critic, librarian, historian or teacher of children’s literature, who then presents a lecture at a winning host site: Lois Lowry will deliver the 2011 lecture. The internationally acclaimed author’s career spans more than 30 years. She is a two-time recipient of the Newbery Medal, in 1990 for Number the Stars, set in Denmark during World War II, and in 1994 for the eerily dystopian The Giver. Both books are published by Houghton Mifflin.

For more information on the ALA youth media awards and notables, please visit the ALA Web site at http://www.ala.org.

WHCLIST Award Announced for Advocacy Day

The White House Conference on Library and Information Services Taskforce (WHCLIST) and the ALA Washington Office announce the 2009 WHCLIST Award, which provides a stipend of $300 for a non-librarian participant to attend Library Advocacy Day on June 29, 2010, in Washington D.C. Not only will the winner attend the rally, but s/he will attend Congressional meetings with his/her elected officials and/or their staffs. The winner will be introduced at the rally and participate in advocacy meetings in Congressional offices. WHCLIST served an historic role in library advocacy nationally, statewide, and locally following the White House Conferences on Library and Information Services in 1979 and 1991. WHCLIST now provides this opportunity each year for a new generation of library advocates to continue the WHCLIST mission of committed, passionate library advocates to continue the WHCLIST mission of committed, passionate library support both ALA and WHCLIST want to ensure that the American people benefit from the best library service possible. The WHCLIST Award will be used to further these efforts. For more information contact Kristin Murphy at 202-628-8419, kmurphy@alawash.org.

ALA’s atyourlibrary.org Features New Content

Atyourlibrary.org, which launched earlier this year, continues to post lively new content that encourages the public to use their local library. The mission of the site (www.atyourlibrary.org) is to be a catalyst that drives people to their local libraries. The web site works to get the word out that libraries are filled with rich resources, which are easy to access, as well as promote the goals of the Campaign for America’s Libraries. Where available, recommended resources are linked to the WorldCat database, which provides a list of the nearest libraries with the recommended item.

The web site was launched with funding from the Carnegie Corporation of New York, with additional support provided by the Disney Book Group.

Atyourlibrary.org is part of the Campaign for America’s Libraries (www.ala.org/atyourlibrary), ALA’s public awareness campaign that promotes the value of libraries and librarians. Thousands of libraries of all types — across the country and around the globe — use the Campaign’s @ yourlibrary® brand. The Campaign is made possible by ALA’s Library Champions, corporations and foundations that advocate the importance of the library in American society.

Other partners are Dollar General, the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA), the International Federation of Library Associations and Institutions (IFLA), the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum, Univision Radio, Verizon and Woson’s Day magazine.

Custom NEWS, Inc.
The Art of the Library
at University of Western Ontario

Challenge: Simplify digitization and unify access to local special collections

Solution: Content Pro digital library tool

Result: Faster workflow and united access to both university archives and museum holdings

When the University of Western Ontario's McIntosh Art Gallery (Canada) staff decided to digitize their unique collection, the Library began using Content Pro to unite access to both archival materials and local artwork. Bringing it all together, simplifying workflow, and supporting teaching and research—now that's the art of the library.

Come see Content Pro at booth #1912!