BACKGROUND:

General

1. This is the successor document to “Guidelines for ALA Council Listserv”, which was first promulgated in 1993. This update of the original guidelines is required by changes in communication technology, how technology is used, and institutional priorities.

2. As the American Library Association (ALA) has moved closer and closer to a paperless workflow, the guidelines giving direction to ALA staff need to be reviewed and updated on a regular basis. This allows communication between Councilors and between ALA and the Council to proceed in as efficient a manner as possible.

History, Review, and Future

1. The original guidelines for Council communication were published when the Council list was founded in 1993. Those guidelines only addressed the listserv (now called the Council List). Over the past 21 years, the capabilities of technology as well as the depth of penetration in libraries have progressed far beyond the original guidelines.

2. The immediate cause for the creation of the Presidential Task force on Electronic Communications for Council was the increasing level of confusion regarding the posting and distribution of Council Documents. This was complicated by Council policy directives emphasizing the need to increase sustainability and decrease the carbon footprint of the association. The response was an opt-in system for shifting to electronic documents only.
3. The charge of this task force is: “To examine and revise as needed the guidelines for the Council email lists and electronic communications; to determine when various Council Documents should be available to the membership-at-large and the public-at-large; to determine what options are available for sharing Council Documents and what are the capabilities, requirements, and consequences of each option; to make recommendations to Council regarding which option(s) should be adopted; to determine a schedule for re-examining these issues; to prepare an interim report for Annual 2014; and to prepare a final report and recommendations for Midwinter 2015.”

Principles

The Task Force agreed that the following principles would guide our work and recommendations:

1. All draft and final documents should be available to everyone.
2. Authoritative versions of all documents should be available in one location. These versions should be marked clearly so Council and members know what it is being presented.
3. There should be no distinction between access to Council and access to other members, except for discussions requiring confidentiality.
4. Additional costs to ALA, i.e. using cloud-based communications services, must be weighed carefully when considering communication of Council reports and documents to ALA members and the general public.
