Strategic Review
November 2018 – May 2019

On November 8 and 9, 2018, the ALA Endowment Trustees commenced a six-month strategic review process with a two-day retreat in Chicago. Elizabeth Warren, Principal, and Geoff Wilson, Senior Investment Consultant, at Mercer Investment Consulting provided excellent facilitation and document support and offered ‘best practice’ options for consideration. ALA staff Mary Ghikas, Executive Director; Mark Leon, Chief Financial Officer; and Keith Brown, Senior Financial Analyst, participated. On February 19, 2019, Trustees and staff continued the planning in a follow-up session prior to their annual meeting in New York. Finally, they completed the review process during Trustees spring meeting in Chicago on May 14, 2019.

The purpose of the strategic review was to evaluate, update, and articulate the Trustees’ working practices. The ALA Investment Policy Statement, Trustee charge and responsibilities, position description, application process and criteria, work schedule, communication practices, benchmarking, and investment advisor selection and evaluation processes were all part of the review. As a result, a number of policies and procedures were written or revised. Associated documentation is now incorporated into the electronic Endowment Trustees Policy and Procedure Manual.

Investment philosophy and strategy were specifically not included in this strategic review.

Endowment Overview

- The ALA Endowment comprises 73 separate funds, including funds for scholarships, awards, divisions.
- Funds may be restricted (36), unrestricted (34), or temporarily restricted (35).
- For the purposes of investment efficiency, all funds are commingled, with separate internal reporting for each fund.
- The Endowment Trustees' highest priority is to protect and maintain the principal, followed closely by generating revenue, including interest and dividends
- The Endowment Trustees review the portfolio's performance at each of their meetings.

Requirements for Endowed Funds within the ALA Endowment

- Reach and maintain a minimum threshold of $50,000
- Include a clearly stated purpose

Fees that Impact Individual Funds in the ALA Endowment

- Annually funded awards and scholarships have a minimum administrative fee of $500 or 20% of the award, up to a maximum of $1,000, which is paid by the individual fund.
- Bank fees are based on a proportional percentage of fees incurred by the entire endowment portfolio. Currently bank fees are 59 basis points¹ (.0059). Thus, for example, a $100,000 endowment would incur bank fees of approximately $590. Grants or matching grants for projects related to an endowment may have higher negotiated overhead or administrative fees.

- Fees may be incurred on behalf of a given fund for various activities; e.g., support for speaker fees related the fund's purpose, support to attend a conference, etc.

Funding Expectations

Funding for any endowment-supported activity in a given year is dependent on money being available in the associated fund in that year. This includes scholarships and awards with which specific funding levels are associated.

As of the 2011 Annual Conference, the spending formula in ALA Endowment Policy 8.5.1 was revised to the following:

The annual spending formula in ALA policy 8.5.1 will be a range of “3% to 5% of the trailing five-year quarterly (20) rolling average of each fund’s calendar year end net asset balance.” The annual spending rate will be subject to an annual review and assessment by the ALA Endowment Trustees and the Finance and Audit committee with final approval by the ALA Executive Board. The current spending/payout rate for FY17 is 5%. Note that this rate is approximately one year in advance of the development of a particular budget; i.e., the FY18 determined spending/payout rate will apply to the FY20 budget.

Each spring, Trustees review the returns from the previous 20 quarters. As a result of this analysis, Trustees recommend to the Executive Board a distribution from or “draw” on all funds in the Endowment. In recent years this rate has been 5%.

Given the unpredictability of the financial markets, there may be times when the annual distributions from funds in the Endowment may be insufficient to fully fund a given scholarship or award. Based on the authority conveyed by ALA Endowment Policy 8.5.1, fund overseers may go into the principal to cover a shortfall. However, it is preferred that the principal remain untouched unless it is absolutely necessary. Other options for covering shortfalls in annual distributions include fundraising and/or transfers from operating net assets from an associated ALA division or unit.

Characteristics of Portfolio

How an investment portfolio's assets are allocated is key to achieving optimal performance and/or growth in a portfolio over time. The Endowment Trustees employ a strategy that provides for target ranges within each asset class, allowing Trustees to adjust to market conditions.

Additionally, to minimize risk, the Endowment Trustees invest in a variety of financial instruments. Of the 22 investment portfolios held by ALA in 2019, 19 are actively managed by managers selected from a pool of candidates that meet minimum requirements for participation in the Merrill Lynch “Consults” program. These managers represent specific investing styles that are designed to capture or take advantage of various/specific segments of the market. The managers must be able to work within the ALA investment policy as established by the Endowment Trustees and approved by the ALA Executive Board.

SECTION I

INTRODUCTION AND PURPOSE

The purpose of this document is to identify and present a set of investment objectives, investment guidelines and performance standards for the investable financial assets of the American Library Association (ALA.) The investment of the Association's financial assets is intended to support the ongoing mission of the ALA and its Divisions, Round Tables and Offices. The investment objective of the ALA is long-term principal growth of 4% annually plus inflation in accordance with The Uniform Prudent Management of Institutional Funds Act (UPMIFA).

The intent of this Investment Policy Statement is to design the investment program structure with specific parameters and clearly defined policies and objectives that reflect the philosophy of the ALA Endowment Trustees and the mission of the Association.

This document provides guidance for the Endowment Trustees and the Association's finance staff to fulfill the responsibilities that the ALA Executive Board delegates to them. Although these policies and objectives are intended to govern the investment activity, they are designed to be sufficiently flexible in order to be practical.

This Investment Policy Statement (IPS) is set forth to:

- 1) Define the investment policies, guidelines and objectives of the Association.
- 2) Create a framework from which the Endowment Trustees can evaluate investment performance, monitor compliance with the IPS, explore new opportunities and make recommendations to enhance the investment portfolio.
- 3) Provide guidance for, expectations of, and limitations on, all parties bearing investment responsibilities for the Association.
- 4) Ensure that the Association's investable financial assets are managed according to the highest standards of fiduciary responsibility and in accordance with prudent investment practices including UPMIFA.

All investable funds of the Association, its Divisions, Round Tables and Offices are placed in a single fund for investment purposes. Earnings and draws are apportioned to the individual funds on an annual basis.

SECTION II

DELEGATION OF RESPONSIBILITIES

Relationship between ALA Executive Board and the Endowment Trustees.

The ALA Executive Board is ultimately responsible for decisions that affect the Association. The Executive Board appoints all Endowment Trustees except the ALA Treasurer who is elected by the Association's membership and serves a three-year term. The Executive Board also names the Senior Trustee. The Executive Board delegates to the Endowment Trustees the responsibility of managing the Association's investable financial assets including, but not limited, to the following actions:

- 1) Select the investment manager from a competitive process. This process should be held every three to five years.
- 2) Coordinate the activities of investment manager.
- 3) Study market and investment issues pertinent to the Association and make decisions as appropriate.
- 4) The Senior Trustee shall report the Trustees activities and decisions four times per year to the Executive Board. The Senior Trustee shall also report at the Association's Council/Membership Information Meetings.

Endowment Trustees Responsibilities

The Endowment Trustees are responsible for managing the investment process in a prudent manner. The Trustees use a total return approach (defined herein) for the evaluation of investment returns and are willing to accept an overall level of risk (defined herein) commensurate with the Association's strategic asset allocation to achieve the stated objectives.

Based on input and advice from the investment advisor, Trustees determine the overall asset allocation model and make decisions on each individual investment. Trustees shall discharge their duties solely in the interest of the Association and for the exclusive purpose of meeting the financial needs of the Association.

The Endowment Trustees' responsibilities include:

- 1) Developing investment objectives consistent with the financial needs and mission of the American Library Association. The Trustees have a commitment to Environmental, Social and Governance (ESG) investment products as long as these products do not sacrifice returns.
- 2) Determining the investment strategy and asset allocation to meet the Association's objectives.

- 3) Setting investment policy guidelines.
- 4) Selecting the investment advisor.
- 5) Adopting performance measurement standards, reviewing and evaluating investment results in the context of such standards and implementing corrective action as needed.
- 6) Periodically reviewing the IPS, long-term return objectives, and the asset allocation to maintain appropriate alignments.

Guidelines for the Investment Advisor

Through a competitive process the Endowment Trustees engage an independent investment advisor to assist in developing strategies to meet the Association's objectives and to monitor investment performance and compliance with the stated investment policies. The investment advisor's responsibilities include:

- 1) Assisting in the development and implementation of investment policies, objectives and guidelines.
- 2) Conducting portfolio analyses, including asset allocation studies, and recommending investment strategies based on such analyses designed to achieve the Association's objectives.
- 3) Recommending specific investments in managed accounts, mutual funds, private equity, real assets and other appropriate vehicles.
- 4) Monitoring investment performance and presenting performance evaluation reports.
- 5) Attending Endowment Trustee meetings to present overall economic analysis, market conditions and forecasts, and specific investment recommendations for the Trustees action that reflect expected market directions.
- 6) Providing portfolio asset allocation balancing recommendations annually.
- 7) Reviewing and developing special investment strategies that complement existing asset classes or strategies to be considered by the Endowment Trustees
- 8) Assisting the Trustees in special projects, such as asset allocation studies or capital markets research.

SECTION III

ASSOCIATION INVESTMENT OBJECTIVES

Total Return Policy

The Association's investment strategy utilizes the total return approach for calculating investment returns. ALA's total return is comprised of both income and capital gains (realized and unrealized). When considering the portfolio's investment performance, the Trustees will measure the total returns, including dividends on stock, interest on fixed-income securities, distributions from Real Estate Investment Trusts and other income producing investments and capital gains. Distributions will be withdrawn from the portfolio without regard to the portion of the total return that is derived from capital gains or from income.

The long-term annual return objective is a minimum return of 4.0% plus inflation, net of fees.

Specific Return Measurement Objectives

The Endowment Trustee's return objective is based upon a long-term investment horizon, with an expectation that returns will fluctuate over the interim. In setting return objectives, the Trustees give careful consideration to a number of factors including (but not limited to): anticipated additions/withdrawals to/from principal, inflation, interest and dividend yields, and projected rates of return on asset classes considered suitable for inclusion in the portfolio. While there cannot be complete assurance that the defined objectives will be realized, it is believed that the likelihood of their realization is enhanced through investment diversification.

Each month the investment advisor will report actual returns relative to the long-term return objective, a composite index of benchmark indices weighted in the same proportion as the Association's Target Allocation (as described in Section IV, Asset Allocation, herein), and a benchmark index. The returns will also be periodically evaluated versus a comparative universe including the risk levels.

Spending Policy

Each year the Trustees will recommend to the Executive Board a spending or draw rate based on a rolling average of the previous 20 quarters. The Association or any of its Divisions and Round Tables is not obliged to spend any or all of this draw.

Volatility and Risk

The Endowment Trustees believe that the return objective can be achieved while assuming acceptable risk levels commensurate with market volatility. Risk considerations will be viewed from a total portfolio perspective rather than at the individual investment level. Market volatility is defined as the trailing three-and five-year standard deviation of a composite index of benchmark indices weighted in the same proportion as the Association's Target Allocation (as described in Section IV, Asset Allocation, herein).

General Investment Considerations and Constraints:

- 1) Liquidity: At times, the Association requires cash or other liquid assets to meet its spending or draw needs. Senior Association Finance staff should be the judge of liquidity needs.
- 2) Time Horizon: The Association has an infinite life. Therefore, the Trustees should manage investable assets with a time horizon longer than the normal market investment cycle which can be defined as 10 years or longer.

SECTION IV

ASSET ALLOCATION

The single most important decision regarding investment returns made by the Endowment Trustees is the target asset allocation decision. Investment research has determined that a significant portion of a portfolio's investment behavior can be attributed to 1) the asset classes/styles which are employed; and 2) the weighting to each asset class/style. The Endowment Trustees have the responsibility to identify a target asset allocation mix that offers a high probability of achieving the Association's investment objectives commensurate with acceptable risk levels. The Trustees should review the target asset allocation on an ongoing basis and make revisions as market conditions change.

The Trustees develop an asset allocation model using appropriate best practice tools. The Endowment's target asset allocations are set early in each calendar year and appear in Appendix ALA Endowment Target Asset Allocations (current year

The Trustees will select a target asset allocation that falls within the strategic allocation parameters they have identified. The target asset allocation policy is expected to have a reasonable likelihood of meeting the objectives outlined in Section III. The asset allocation ranges established by this IPS represent a long-term perspective. As such, rapid unanticipated market shifts or changes in economic conditions may cause the asset mix to fall outside the policy range. These divergences should be of a short-term nature.

Within the asset allocation model, the Trustees employ any appropriate investment vehicle that is in common use. These vehicles may include actively and passively managed mutual funds, electronically traded funds, separately managed accounts, real estate investment trusts, real assets, private equity, hedge funds, domestic and international funds, long-short strategies and so forth. The Association does not purchase or own individual stocks or bonds.

SECTION V

INVESTMENT ADVISOR POLICIES AND PERFORMANCE MEASUREMENT STANDARDS

The following guidelines broadly define performance and risk criteria for the investment advisor and individual managers.

Although the Trustees make all investment decisions, they rely on the investment advisor to recommend appropriate investments to consider. Trustees expect the investment advisors to help the Association meet or exceed established benchmarks.

Over reasonable market cycles (3 to 5 years) investment manager's returns (net of fees) are expected to be competitive with their comparative index. Returns for traditional managers will also be measured versus a comparative peer universe. Over three and five-year periods investment managers are expected to demonstrate an ability to rank in the top quarter of their comparative peer universe. There may be periods of underperformance by active managers. The Trustees will also monitor investment managers' risk, organization changes and potential style drift on an ongoing basis. This three to five-year period may not apply to alternatives such as private equity.

The Endowment Trustees may terminate an investment advisor or account manager for any reason.

SECTION VI

ADMINISTRATION

Procedure for Revising Guidelines

The Endowment Trustees will review all investment policies and objectives on an annual basis.

Conflicts of Interest

Any actual or potential conflict of interest between Endowment Trustees, Executive Board and senior Association management must be fully disclosed. Such Trustees, or Executive Board members may be requested to recuse themselves from voting in certain circumstances. The Trustees are not expressly prohibited from owning mutual funds or other publicly traded investments the Association holds unless these holdings would be material to the management of a fund or investment product. If so, they must be disclosed.

Contributions

All cash contributions to the Association that are designated for the Endowment shall be invested according to the asset allocation policy.

Portfolio Balancing

The Association's investment portfolio may drift from the target asset allocation due to market movement and cash flows. Since the asset allocations are the most critical component of the Association's return, it is desirable to balance the portfolio periodically. The Endowment Trustees will periodically review the asset allocations relative to the target allocation as described in Section IV. The Trustees may then direct the investment advisor to make recommendations for rebalancing relative to the target allocation.

American Library Association Endowment Trustees

Charge and Responsibilities

The purpose of the American Library Association's Endowment is to aggregate in one place all of the Association's investable financial assets. These assets are invested in a widely diverse number of financial instruments designed to produce a stable return over a long period of time in alignment with the mission of the Association. (See Investment Policy Statement for specifics.)

As specified by the Endowment Trustees and the ALA Executive Board, the Association's General Fund, Divisions, and Round Tables may draw on their respective investment returns to support their various programs. Any funds not drawn will remain in the investment pool to benefit from future returns. Investment principal may not be used except in extraordinary situations as defined by the Executive Board in consultation with the Endowment Trustees.

The ALA Endowment Trustees are charged with and are responsible for:

1. Recruiting and retaining an investment advisor of the highest quality to work with the Trustees. Fees should be in line with standards in this industry.
2. As called for in the Uniform Prudent Management of Institutional Funds Act (UPMIFA), identifying an appropriately diverse group of asset classes that will capture upside swings in the market as well as mitigating risks.
3. Within this diverse group of asset classes, identifying appropriate individual investments that will collectively produce an annual return of at least four percent (4%) plus inflation.
4. Selecting appropriate benchmarks against which to measure separately managed accounts and holding individual managers accountable for their performance.
5. At least once a year, evaluating the array of available benchmarks and determining how well the ALA benchmarks are serving the needs of the Trustees.
6. At least once a year, reviewing the balance of the portfolio in the context of the minimum, target, and maximum parameters for each asset class as defined in the Investment Policy Statement.

Investment Advisor Selection

One of the most important responsibilities the Trustees have is selecting an outstanding investment advisor. While a stable relationship with a qualified advisor can be valuable, seeking an investment advisor with new or different perspectives may be equally valuable.

The Trustees will conduct a Request for Information (RFI) for an investment advisory every three to five years, unless an advisor is dismissed for cause or poor performance and an immediate RFI is warranted.

When an investment advisor is selected, that advisor should be given at least three years to demonstrate outstanding performance in advising the Trustees on asset allocation and investments. While it is just as important for the portfolio to perform well in down markets as it does in up ones, the advisor needs adequate time to demonstrate how his/her guidance has resulted in outstanding portfolio performance. An advisor should not necessarily be held responsible for a prolonged downturn in the markets.

The Trustees shall develop metrics for measuring advisor performance that are consistent with those used throughout the financial services industry. These metrics will be shared with the advisor and the Trustees will review and evaluate the advisor's performance on an annual basis.

With the advice of the Trustees, the ALA Finance Department will create the necessary documentation for an RFI and solicit proposals from leading firms in the investment advisory business. In addition to an outstanding history of performance, candidates must demonstrate a commitment to the Association's mission and investing philosophy. The Trustees and ALA Finance Department senior staff will conduct interviews as appropriate in order to arrive at a selection decision. Firms that only propose an Outsourced Chief Investment Officer (OCIO) service will not be considered.

V. Guidelines Used in Filling the Position of Endowment Trustee:

The Executive Board and Trustees have agreed on the following general guidelines for filling the position of Endowment Trustee. Please read the guidelines and provide responses where indicated. You may submit your responses on a separate piece of paper, but please follow the order and format indicated.

A. Investment Skills

It is required that the Trustees bring a working knowledge of the financial markets. This working knowledge should include the fundamentals of investment practice, as well as familiarity with market indices. Experience in investing as a Trustee, custodian, or similar capacity is beneficial. Awareness of economic principles, and interest in and commitment to being informed about the state of the economy are also desirable.

Please describe/summarize the extent of your knowledge of financial markets:

Please describe/summarize your experience in investing:

Please list any formal education/training or experience you have had that would demonstrate your awareness in this area:

B. Association Involvement

It is desired that the Trustees evidence a basic knowledge of ALA's mission and goals and an awareness of the services and activities of the Association. Knowledge of the awards and scholarship program is beneficial, as is work in other areas of the Association.

Please list any non-profit activities you may have had that contribute to your knowledge and awareness of non-profit organizations. Include any present or past responsibilities you would like to emphasize:

C. Judgement and Analytical Skills

Essential to the effective operation of the endowment is the Trustee's ability to exercise judgement and to make decisions that reflect prudence, insight, and care. Teamwork among the Trustees is essential for this shared charge to be effectively dispatched. The ability to study a financial situation and to develop well-reasoned strategies is a critical requirement. While the Trustees exercise independent judgement and discretion with regard to endowments, they need to be effective communicators and to take necessary and appropriate direction from the Executive Board.

Please describe your ability to meet the above criteria:

ELEVATOR SPEECH:
WHY IS THE ALA ENDOWMENT FUND IMPORTANT
TO ALA AND ITS MEMBERS ?

The ALA Endowment makes a big difference to ALA, to a broad range of ALA members, and to the larger library community. But how does it do this?

- With more than $46.7 million in assets as of August 31, 2019, the endowment is critical to the future financial health of ALA
- Income from the Endowment – to which many divisions and round tables contribute annually – provides direct support for scholarships, awards, operations, and new initiatives. Scholarships such as Spectrum, as well as numerous awards are supported by the Endowment
- Thanks to the endowment’s payout policy, units of the Association have received more than $9.1 million over the last five years to fund mission-critical activities.
- Likewise, the ALA General Fund has received more than $ 2.9 million in Endowment payouts over the last five years to support programs critical to the Association and its members, including
- ALA members are increasingly including the endowment in their estate plans
