ASCLA begins independent librarian listing in Interface

Beginning with the Fall 2004 issue, the Association of Specialized and Cooperative Library Agencies (ASCLA) will begin offering an opportunity for independent librarians and consultants to reach potential clients by purchasing listings in the division newsletter, Interface.

Interface is published four times a year and reaches more than 1,000 readers in state library agencies, specialized library agencies, multi-type library cooperatives, libraries serving people with disabilities, and independent librarians.

The listings will be included in four issues with discounted rates for ASCLA members. A basic listing ($80) includes contact information with a description of areas of expertise and an expanded listing ($100) includes digital reproduction of business card with description of areas of expertise.

Non-ASCLA members will pay the following rates: basic listing at $120 and expanded listing at $140.

Please note that inclusion in Interface does not constitute endorsement or certification by ASCLA or the American Library Association (ALA).

Independent librarians and consultants interested in being included should visit <http://www.ala.org/ascla/interface/ads> or send their name, company name, address, telephone number, fax number, e-mail address, Web address, and a list of areas of expertise along with payment (payable to the American Library Association) to Interface, ASCLA/ALA, 50 E Huron St., Chicago, IL 60611. Digital information should be e-mailed to llewis@ala.org. For more information contact Lillian Lewis at 800-545-2433 x4396 or llewis@ala.org.

ASCLA, a division of ALA, enhances the development and effectiveness of library service through its diverse professional and service constituencies.
