Children & Libraries

READERSHIP

Children and Libraries (CAL) is read by library personnel who work with children, birth to age fourteen, in public and school libraries. These library workers are responsible for purchasing print and non-print library materials including books, recordings, apps, toys, games, and crafting supplies; introducing youth to and mentoring families on new technology that provides access to information and entertainment; planning and delivering programming and services to young patrons and their families and caregivers; recommending books and media to young people; selecting furnishings and equipment; and designing welcoming and innovative spaces for youth in libraries.

Children and Libraries is also read by library school faculty who specialize in library service to children and children's literature and by other professionals who work on behalf of children and literacy.

EDITORIAL FOCUS

Published quarterly, CAL provides continuing education, peer-reviewed research, and best practice articles; and also features pieces by and about authors and illustrators of children's literature.
