About ALA

The American Library Association (ALA) works for students by advocating for increased library funding and the ongoing development of the profession. Through our accreditation program, ALA ensures that the training you receive will prepare you for your chosen career.

Job Resources

ALA will help you with resources to find your first job and to remain competitive. ALA student members have access to the best network of career and professional development resources for library workers.

Divisions and Round Tables

You need more than classwork to be fully prepared for your career. Joining ALA divisions and round tables is an excellent way to build experience in your specialty by meeting and working with longtime professionals. Student members can take advantage of ALA resources like résumé review services, job placement events, and car & home insurance.

To learn more about ALA and our divisions or round tables, visit www.ala.org or call 1-800-645-2433, ext 5.

About DCLA

DCLA: Developing Leaders Since 1894 - The District of Columbia Library Association (DCLA) is an all volunteer association that provides leadership to the library community in the District of Columbia. Founded in 1894, DCLA played a key role in the establishment of the District of Columbia Public Library and was responsible for initiating the first Library Legislative Day, now an annual event co-sponsored by ALA. DCLA provides opportunities for personal and professional development through networking; participation in committees, interest groups, and its executive board – and through programming for new and transitioning information professionals. DCLA also advocates for local libraries and issues related to library service. Membership is inclusive to all information professionals and library supporters. The Association is a chapter of the American Library Association (ALA), with an elected chapter councilor serving on the ALA governing board.

DCLA Interest Groups

Advocacy; Career and Leadership Development; Emerging Technologies; Intellectual Freedom; National Library Legislative Day
