Become an ALA Student Member
Even before you graduate, career planning is job #1, and ALA is here to help. Whether you are still exploring your options within the profession, or are focused on specific career goals, ALA offers resources to support you now and throughout your career. ALA membership and participation help you build marketable skills beyond the classroom that are attractive to employers. Connecting with experienced professionals is invaluable to your career. If you only use one member benefit, it should be ALA’s premier employment and job search resource, www.joblist.ala.org.

Relevant Resources and Benefits

- NEW Student Member Portal: Start Here. Go Anywhere. This ALA web page is a terrific starting point that links you to ALA services, support, information, programs, products, and more for students in Library and Information Science programs. Simply select the links you are interested in to quickly and easily access a world of valuable information and resources. www.ala.org/membership/student-member-support-portal

- Student ALDirect. The only e-newsletter covering job search, skill-building beyond the classroom, free and low-cost resources, and member-to-member connections.

- Financial Support Information. Your guide to scholarships, grants, and stipends offered by numerous ALA departments and units as well as our supportive corporate members.

- New Members Round Table. Resources you need and the connections you want to get started, making the most of your ALA membership right away.

- Connections. You’ll find relevant information, new colleagues and friends to share, create, and work with on topics and issues that matter to you—in person, through social media, and via ALAConnect, providing online communities for peer interaction and for joining others who care about the same things you do.

- Numerous Free and Discounted Publications. Receive the latest news about developments that affect libraries, along with the informed analysis and advice you need for your career.

- Discounted Products and Services. Save money and add value to your membership as you grow and learn throughout your career.

- ALA Divisions and Round Tables. Connect and work with others in your areas of professional interest and specialization and bridge the gaps across theory, practice, and work-life enjoyment.

- ALA JobLIST—www.joblist.ala.org—offers one-stop 24/7 access for career leads, communicating with employers, and tips for success in the library and information science profession.

Joint Memberships and Student Chapters on Campus

- Joint Membership with state library associations is available for students who live or study in participating states. For one discounted price of $38, student joint members automatically receive full membership in both their state association and ALA. See if your state offers joint membership at www.ala.org/groups/joint-membership-program.

- Student Chapters of ALA exist at many MLIS programs, giving you the opportunity to help jump start networking and professional connections on campus. Check with your school to see if there is a student chapter or go to www.ala.org/groups/affiliates/chapters/student/studentchapters1.
