

American Library Association
Report from President Julius C. Jefferson Jr.
Spring 2021

In the three months since our January Midwinter meeting, my time and efforts continue to be focused on advocacy and EDI. Below are highlights of my activities.

ADVOCACY

The January midwinter meeting provided an opportunity to have a conversation about advocacy with Senator Jack Reed. Much of my time has been promoting two major bills, the American Rescue Plan Act 2021 and the Build America's Libraries Act. I also had the privilege to share a few moments with Dr. Jill Biden who shared her passion and love for libraries.

EDI

During the virtual midwinter meeting I presented Disrupting MicroAgressions: Engaging in Effect Actions, an interactive workshop that was a LibLearnX preview that focused on the effects of microaggressions and the skills needed to intervene when microaggressions take place, particularly in ways that maintain relationships with patrons and colleagues.

ALA Connect Live

The first ALA Connect Live program of 2021 in February, recognized the important and unique role libraries play in wider community conversations about resiliency, climate change, a sustainable future, and what libraries themselves can do. In the March ALA Connect we were joined by ALA Chapter leaders to discuss the positive impact that state and national partnerships have on libraries and library workers. We featured success stories from the last year where we worked together to protect fundamental rights of libraries as well as to advocate for libraries during these challenging times.

Forward Together Resolution Working Group

In preparation for the March 31 Council meeting, I met with the Forward Together Resolutions Working Group who provided an update. I will be available to provide any support or guidance for the FTRWG as needed.
