

Privilege and Identity Wheel

Take a few minutes to fill out the categories below, in order to create a map of how the intersecting parts of your identity result in privilege and oppression. The more privileged you are by an aspect of identity, the closer to the centre of the wheel your marker will be. You can also think of the wheel as reflecting exclusion nearer the edge of the wheel, and inclusion closer to the centre. These aspects can change over time, and in different environments. If there are any pertinent parts of your identity or privilege you don't see here, feel free to create extra spokes on your wheel in order to reflect them.

