HOW THEY LOOK IN YOUR LIBRARY

- Children's librarians build relationships with children during and after storytimes, providing interactions with familiar adults.
- Children's librarians use movement songs during storytimes to encourage small and gross motor development.
- Children's librarians give children a variety of avenues to express ideas and feelings in programming from art, to music, to crafts.
- Children's librarians ask open-ended questions to build reading and comprehension skills.
- Children's librarians introduce children to basic math concepts by using counting books like Ten in the Bed.
