

Money Smart Week @ your librar Webinar Oct 18, 2012- Chat Session

| Participant                        | Comment or Response  |
|---|---|
| from Linda Wolfe to All Participants:     | Can we get copies of the slides?  |
| from Webinar Support to All Participants: | We'll be recording today's session and will send a follow up email with the link in the next few days.  |
| from Joan Morris to All Participants:     | We are running a program for teens currently using Bank it for Teens  |
| from Melissa Jeter to All Participants:   | Awesome, Joan!  |
| from Webinar Support to Linda Wolfe       | Each panelist has their own slides. We can work something out.  |
| from Tammy Gerson to All Participants:    | We are continuing our Money Matters Financial Literacy classes that started with our FINRA grant  |
| from Jackie DiNatale to All Participants: | I am from United Way. We are partnering with Goodwill and other local community resources for VITA voluteers and sites as well as starting to bring finl education to our community |
| from Michael Dowling (privately):         | Thanks!   |
| from Melissa Jeter to All Participants:   | Toledo Lucas County Public Library is applying for a Finra grant  |
| from Melissa Jeter to All Participants:   | that's the one we were invited to   |
| from Shana Gass to All Participants:      | I'm from Towson University - curious about how academic libraries are participating in Money Smart Week   |
| from Michael Dowling to All Participants: | Shana: Sara Seaman will talk next about how academic libraries have participated  | from Barbara Jacobini to All Participants: what are "overruns"?

from Melissa Jeter to All Participants: People love shredded money from Tammy Gerson to All Participants: Our literacy instructor teaches outside the library to GED classes.

from Shana Gass to All Participants: Thanks Michael!

from roseanne dorfman to All Participants: trying to coordinate an adult and YA program to participate from Michael Dowling to All Participants: All: Lori and Fond du Lace have been involved for a number of years so have a robust program. To begin with, the only ask is that you do at least 'one' program during the week.

from James Yergin to All Participants: Will the presentation be available as a handout?

from ELLEN India to All Participants: yes

from Susan Traub to All Participants: So impressive!

from Michael Dowling to All Participants: Yes, the program is being recorded and archived and we will send out the link after the webinar.

from Lora Glass to All Participants: great information! thank you lori from Michael Biltz to All Participants: Hello.

from Cathy Seary to All Participants: Thanks Lori - very informative!

from Nel Ducomb to All Participants: Excellent Lori!

from Webinar Support to Lori Burgess: Good job Lori!!

from Cathy Seary to All Participants: Lori do you every pay the presenters?

from Lori Burgess to All Participants: We were not allowed to use banks for the smart investing grant, but banks are allowed for Money Smart Week from Melissa Jeter to All Participants: will the log of the chat be available in addition to the slides etc?

from Lori Burgess to All Participants: We do not pay presenters. They are usually happy to donate their time and expertise from Cathy Seary to All Participants: Thanks from Webinar Support to All Participants: We'll capture the chat log. I can give it to Michael afterwards.

from Lori Burgess to All Participants: Starting small is a great tip! Start with a storytime, perhaps one adult program.

from Linda Wolfe to All Participants: How many programs do you have during the week?

from Jackie DiNatale to All Participants: our goal is to bring 4 to 5 sessions to our community in 2013. Then increase from there based on our success.

from Michael Dowling to All Participants: Just one to be a Money Smart Week participant.

from Lori Burgess to All Participants: A few years ago we had 50+ programs--that was WAY too many for us.

from Le Harris to All Participants: Yes the Consumer Action handbook is a great resource!

from Elizabeth Heady to All Participants: What about older patrons?

from Lori Burgess to All Participants: For kids, we usually have a storytime, a piggy bank program, and a contest or two. We now do these on one day "Family Moolah Fun Day" from Melina Reylek (privately): sound is lost from Lori Burgess to All Participants: For older patrons, we group programs--Usually 3-4 on Mon & Wed Mornings. 2-3 on Tuesday afternoon and at least one per night on Mon, Tue, and Wed from Webinar Support to Melina Reylek Hi Melinda, you can try stopping and starting the stream in that audio broadcast window.

from Webinar Support to Melina Reylek (privately): It should come back on its own. It's just an internet bottleneck. It's clear here on the phone.

from elissa mcdonald to All Participants: Lori- Did you host the couponing in the evening with a daytime option?

from Lori Burgess to All Participants: stacking the programs or having them all in a row keeps the participants here, but give them a break in between (and the option to leave if they want) from Barbara Roberts to All Participants: Do you ever do anything with K-12 schools in the community?

from Lori Burgess to All Participants: The couponing program was held on a Saturday morning. HUGELY popular!

from elissa mcdonald to All Participants: that makes sense - and connect it to the family day?

from Barbara Roberts to All Participants: But what do you do with the children from K-12 schools?

from sharon stegemeyer to All Participants: how did you find the couponing person?

from Michelle Mitchell to All Participants: We've done couponing on Saturdays in the early afternoon and had a relatively good turnout from Lora Glass to All Participants: Thank you.

from Nel Ducomb to All Participants: Thanks!

from Michael Biltz to All Participants: Thank you.

from Charlotte Skousen to All Participants: Thank you Sara!

from Michael Dowling to All Participants: Money Smart Week has had a Kid's Essay contest each year that the school libraries are engaged in in many areas from Shana Gass to All Participants: Thanks Sara!

from Sarah Paige to All Participants: Thank you, Sara!

from Melissa Jeter to All Participants: Thanks

from James Yergin to All Participants: Thank you from Sheila Urwiler to All Participants: Thank you from Laura Betit to All Participants: Thanks you!

from Lori Burgess to All Participants: For classrooms, we have tried a few things--we have donated books to all of the 2nd grade classrooms and enclosed related info about Money Smart Week events from mauri baumann to All Participants: Thank you...good ideas from Karen Odom to All Participants: Thank you from Carrie Halquist to All Participants: Thanks for the information Sara!

from Beverly Miles to All Participants: Thank you Sara, that was very informative.

from Shana Gass to All Participants: yes, is there a way to involve students as presenters/contributors in some way -- that would be cool from Laurenne Teachout to All Participants: Great information. Thanks.

from Diane Vitale to All Participants: yes from Michael Biltz to All Participants: Yes.

from elissa mcdonald to All Participants: yes from Lora Glass to All Participants: yes

from Michael Dowling to All Participants: YEs

from Charlotte Skousen to All Participants: yes from sharon stegemeyer to All Participants: yes from Sarah Paige to All Participants: Yes!

| from Linda Wolfe to All Participants:      | yes  |

from Dani Lichtenberg to All Participants: yes from Tammy Gerson to All Participants: This has been very informative. Thanks to the last two presenters.

from Cindy Ogden to All Participants: Thank you, Sara! We have a tremendous need for financial literacy programming in our area. Great ideas.

from Jayanne Rumble to All Participants: yes from Angela Katterhagen to All Participants: yes ;)

from Nancy Tillinghast to All Participants: yes

from Diane Sprick to All Participants: yes from Diana Starrett to All Participants: yes.

from Joan Morris to All Participants: yes

from Brian Barret to All Participants: affirmative from Lori Burgess to All Participants: We have offered local VIPs and local "celebrities" to come in and read a book about money from Webinar Support to Michael Dowling: Yikes! Phew.

from Webinar Support to Sara Seaman: Sara, nice job!

from sharon stegemeyer to All Participants: I'm sorry, but how did you find a couponer Lori?

from Sara Seaman to Host (privately): thanks much!

from Lori Burgess to All Participants: The high school has two "reality" days for students--kids get a "salary" and then have to visit 8-10 stations to pay rent, student loans, insurance, etc.

from Michael Dowling (privately): YYEs, I thought I was going to have to chat jokes!

from Webinar Support to Michael Dowling: Something about binders maybe?

from Lori Burgess to All Participants: @Sharon We found the coupon expert via word of mouth. She presented at a few other libraries in the state.

from sharon stegemeyer to All Participants: Thanks...8) from Shana Gass to All Participants: good idea to talk to SGA for student presenters from Lori Burgess to All Participants: You can also contact a local grocery store--neighboring communities have done coupon challenge shopping contests from Webinar Support to Michael Dowling: We ended up with 450 registrants. I'll send you an attendance report later.

from Sara Seaman to Host (privately): we did not pay presenters, and they brought pizza and pop for everyone from Shirley Vonderhaar to All Participants: We no longer have sound. Do others?

from Michael Dowling (privately): Great!!

from Shana Gass to All Participants: @ Sara, maybe a student who could discuss juggling part-time/full-time jobs and school? "getting your money's worth" from Webinar Support to Michael Dowling: 50% attendance is really pretty good.

from maryellen kanarr to All Participants: i have sound from Webinar Support to All Participants: Yes, we do hear Amber.

from Shana Gass to All Participants: sound's ok for me from Sara Seaman to Host (privately): thanks Shana - great idea!

from Charlotte Skousen to All Participants: I still have sound from Shirley Vonderhaar to All Participants: We are back. Thank you.

from Webinar Support to All Participants: It should come back for you on its own.

from Kelly Masters to All Participants: For anyone in Michigan, you can leverage the turnkey offering "Be A Money S.M.A.R.T.Y." presentation by emailing MoneySmartMichigan@gmail.com to simulcast from Metro Detroit libraries to up to 9 sites, per session.

from Carrie Halquist to All Participants: @Sara Do you have a traditional student population or older adult students?

from Webinar Support to Shirley Vonderhaar (privately): Darn internet!

from Webinar Support to Shirley Vonderhaar (privately): Glad it came back. You can also stop and start the audio stream. That will trigger the connection sometimes as well.

from Susan Phillips to All Participants: Our Community Action Agency works with UNL cooperative extension to provide Poverty Simulations to 8th and 12th grade students in participating schools throughout SE Nebraska. this is a great event for participants to realize what it is like to live in poverty...and opportunities to work out of poverty.

from Shana Gass to All Participants: super!

from Webinar Support to Michael Dowling: You'll want to switch to the MDowling Closing slides when I hand it off.

from Angela Katterhagen to All Participants: thankyou!

from Jayanne Rumble to All Participants: thank you from James Yergin to All Participants: thank you all from Laura Betit to All Participants: Thanks all from Charlotte Skousen to All Participants: Thanks, Amber! Perfect presentation for us newbies. :)

from Diane Sprick to All Participants: We contacted all schools after we failed to generate any interest with the principals. Two local school kids won the essay portion - first time ever we had southeastern IN participation. Don't leave out the schools from Lori Burgess to All Participants: Our state 529 college savings program also offers $500 scholarships to local prize winners from sharon stegemeyer to All Participants: Thank you all!

from Webinar Support to amber mathewson Nice job Amber!

from Carrie Halquist to All Participants: @Sara Did you have different programs for different types of students? Or can you cover everyony in one program?

from Laurenne Teachout to All Participants: Will we receive a link to review this information after this session ends today?

from Kelly Masters to All Participants: For libraries in Michigan, you can leverage the turnkey offering "Be A Money S.M.A.R.T.Y." presentation by emailing MoneySmartMichigan@gmail.com to simulcast from Metro Detroit libraries to your site (for adult participants).

from Cindy Dubinski to All Participants: What was the coupon club - a swap event?

from Lori Burgess to All Participants: Several Federal Reserve Banks also offer comic books for libraries to give out (free, in most cases) from Webinar Support to All Participants: <http://www.moneysmartweek.org/> from Carrie Halquist to All Participants: that's a great idea from Susan Phillips to All Participants: We partner this with our SENCA SMART financial literacy program, offer a classroom curriculum, poverty simulation, and the Travelling Trunk from the Fed...it is a great program and is working great!

from Susan Phillips to All Participants: We piloted the program in 2 counties in 2011/2012 and now offering it in 6 counties, schools have been very receptive.

from Patty O'Connor to All Participants: If we were registered last year do we need to register again or can we use the same login as last year.

from Lori Burgess to All Participants: You can use the same login from last year from Sarah Paige to All Participants: When registering, do you indicate "library" even if you are a library in a university?

from Sue Walker to All Participants: Will registration be closed at some point?

from Lisa Martin to All Participants: I believe so, Sarah. I'm pretty sure we did (and we're an academic university) from Kimberly Walsh (privately): Could you please provide the slides and chat in separate documents from the webinar?

from Sarah Paige to All Participants: Thank you, Lisa -- it makes sense but I wanted to clarify!

from Webinar Support to Kimberly Walsh (privately): I'll let Michael know that you'd like that. I can't make that decision, but I'm sure they'll be happy to share.

from Webinar Support to Kimberly Walsh: And thanks for your interest!

from Sarah Paige to All Participants: Thanks, Sara, for that info.

from Lori Burgess to All Participants: The Fed Reserve Bank compiles a list of partners--the deadline for inclusion is Jan 2, 2013. You don't have to know details of your program(s), only that you're planning something.

from Melissa Jeter to All Participants: thanks, Amber from Kelly Masters to All Participants: There is also a deadline for inclusion in print materials, when you'll need to have the details of your offerings.

from roseanne dorfman to All Participants: so the registration for this webinar doesn't count as registering for the actual event?

from Lori Burgess to All Participants: Sorry, no. Just hop over to moneysmartweek.org and register there from roseanne dorfman to All Participants: thx from Kelly Masters to All Participants: Since it's a new website, I'm pretty certain even past participants need to re-register this year.

from Vera Kelsey-Watts to All Participants: so great! thanks to all.

from Kathleen Browning to All Participants: Great presentation...thanks!

from Linda Poortenga to All Participants: thank you this information was very helpful.

from Andrea Adkins to All Participants: Thanks from roseanne dorfman to All Participants: thank you!

from Lora Glass to All Participants: Really enjoyed participating last year and look forward to this year.
